Happenings in Town of General Interest---What Our Merchants Offer in the Way of Trade Inducements

M. E. Cummings was a visitor in San Francisco Monday.

A. E. Warrener spent the week-end in the City of Roses and the Bay City.

For Sale— A gentle, buggy horse, suitable for family use. Apply at this office.

Wanted—By the Sonoma Valley Canning Company, at Buena Vista, all varieties of green fruits, for which the highest market prices will be paid.

Ralph Perkins returned to the metropolis, Sunday. This popular Sonoma young man spent last week in town, to the mutual pleasure of relatives, friends and himself.

Carl Von Hacht returned to his home in the county seat, the latter part of last week, after a fortnight spent in this city, the guest of his brother, Mayor Wm. Von Hacht.

Frank Gilfoyle paid a visit to his mother in the metropolis the week-end. Mrs. Gilfoyle is one of Sonoma Valley's respected pioneers, with many friends who are interested in her welfare.

G. W. Hays, of Berkeley, is at the Broadway Sanitarium. While not seriously ill, yet the condition of Mr. Hays necessitated medical attent on, which he will receive from his competent son, our well-known and successful local physician, Dr. W. B. Hays, for a fortnight.

Mrs. Wm. Von Hacht's many friends are very pleased that she is able to resume social activities. While her illness of last week was, most happily, of short duration, yet it caused considerable anxiety. Mrs. Von Hacht is one of Sonoma's most energetic and valued workers in club and church circles.

Kistle & Co. report business as being steadily on the increase, with general conditions very satisfying and future outlook promising. The firm last month sold over five carloads of feed. The substantial condition of Kistle & Co.'s business is not a surprise to those who have dealings with the concern. No firm in town is more dependable or accommodating.

Deputy Sheriff Joe Ryan spent Saturday in San Francisco, transacting official business. Tuesday was spent by the intrepid officer scouting for voters in Tomales, Bodega, Bloomfield and other coast districts. He was accompanied by his faithful henchman, M. E. Cummings and O. Gericke, who has a wide circle of friends in that section.

Sonoma's sporting element will be largely represented at Petaluma tomorrow, our local horsemen going over to attend the races. Joe [illegible] will drive Lee Brubeck's [illegible] Lady Stillwell; Tom Miller-[illegible]acer, Clara C., will also try [illegible]eed on the track, and Al [illegible]t intends entering his fine [illegible] Mandalay. Joe Ryan will [illegible] Spreckles' Miss Rooney, if [illegible] class is represented. Some [illegible]d racing is expected at the Petaluma track tomorrow. M. E. Cummings is to officiate as one of the judges.

Tonight, at Chauvet Hall, Glen Ellen, a grand Fourth of July ball will be given under the auspices of Harry's Inn, of which Harry Wilkins is proprietor. Good music is to be provided for dancing, and the general good time that always characterizes these dances will undoubtedly prevail on this occasion. Those of the dance public who have not planned out-of-town outings will find plenty of amusement at Chauvet Hall tonight, for the minimum price of twenty-five cents.

A great many residents of this section will go to Petaluma, today, to help celebrate the anniversary of American independence, and no mistake will be made by those who propose attending the big celebration. The Eagle will certainly scream long and loud in the progressive city of little hills on this anniversary of the Nation's birthday, as every incentive has been given the great bird of freedom to proclaim that privilege and royal welcome to Petaluma's guests. A glorious day of events has been arranged. Besides, we people over this way strongly favor reciprocity, and as Petaluma is always splendidly in evidence at all of our big doings, we shall return the compliment today and visit our esteemed sister city in goodly numbers.

Miss Helena Clewe was up from the Bay City for a week-end visit at home.

Mrs. Violet Pressey returned from a week-end visit in the Bay City, Monday evening.

The Misses Zoleta Bates and Mary Springer visited in the Bay City during the week.

The many friends of Mrs. Ralph Murphy, who has been quite ill during the week, will be glad to hear that she is convalescent.

The many friends of Mrs. M. Topete, who has been suffering from a severe attack of enteritis, will learn with pleasure that her condition is considerably improved.

The Misses Myrtle Thomas and Agnes Moss, acccompanied by Leonard Thomas, departed Thursday morning for San Jose. The young people will spend a week visiting with the married sister of Miss Thomas, in the Garden City.

Mrs. Meta C. Gottenberg came up from the metropolis, Friday night of last week, and was a guest at the A. W. Adler home for a short time. Mrs. Gottenberg, as soon as her health permits, will take up the study of dramatics and voice culture, for which she has exceptional talent.

Postmaster L. V. Howell and J. P. McDonell were visitors in our city, Friday of last week, favoring this office with a pleasant call. Our former esteemed townsman, genial J. P., was introducing his companion from the Gold Ridge district to his Sonoma friends, and he was kept mighty busy, as John McDonell is as of yore a prime favorite here, and was very helpful to the cause of his friend, Mr. Howell, who aspires to the office of county treasurer.

What narrowly escaped being a serious conflagration in the Leix Sanitarium, was averted through prompt action on the part of Dr. I. C. Gobar. The doctor was fumigating a room, Thursday evening, on entering which the blaze, which had been detected through the odor of smoke, was found to have spread to the woodwork. Aside from the loss of bedding, etc., but slight damage resulted.

The remains of John Franklin Allen, who passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital, San Francisco, Thursday of last week, June 25th, were laid to rest in Mountain Cemetery Saturday. Deceased came to this locality from Shasta County, nine months ago and located at Vineburg, making his home with his friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. Halsted, with whom he had lived for many years. Mr. Allen was a native of California, and aged fifty-three years. His death resulted from an illness of long standing. He was a man of good reputation, and had made many friends during his residence in Vineburg.

A card received by the editor from Dr. Fred'k. Leix, mailed from Berlin, June 5th, states: "We arrived here the latter part of April, and are both taking post graduate work at the University Clinic, Berlin. Have worked in the University Clinic of Vienna four months. We visited Munich and Dresden on the way from Vienna to Berlin. Munich is famous for art and beer, and you can certainly get the finest in the world: one liter for twenty-six pfing, or six and one-half cents. The art galleries in Dresden are as famous as those in Florence, Italy. We have not yet decided when to return. This is the cleanest and most beautiful new city in the world—everything up-to-date as in America."

Attorney Rolfe L. Thompson was a prominent Santa Rosan in town, Wednesday. Mr. Thompson reports that, while politics absorb public interest in the county seat town, still the political cauldron simmers with an even temperature. During the course of conversation, Santa Rosa's able attorney said many nice things of our candidate for sheriff, Jos. F. Ryan, both as to his sterling character and efficiency as an officer. "You can depend upon it that when Joe Ryan starts after a man, he's going to get him. His record has proven that a fact," said Mr. Thompson. He also paid high tribute to the official course pursued by Officer Ryan during the "wet and dry" agitations in the valley, characterizing him as having been absolutely fair, straightforward and impartial.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles La Torres had the pleasure of entertaining the gentleman's father and sister, Mr. P. and Miss Marie La Torres. The visitors returned to their home in the metropolis, Thursday afternoon.

Coroner Frank L. Blackburn was in town, Sunday and friends, a host of them, were glad to greet the county's affable official. Coroner Blackburn had been very ill, but is rapidly recovering his usual good health, we are pleased to note.

We are glad to note that Mrs. A. Beretta is somewhat improved in health, although not as much so as relatives, friends and physicians wish for. For some weeks Mrs. Beretta has been indisposed, and a speedy change is most ardently hoped for.

Sunday, August 9th, is the date named for the annual picnic, to be given by the Sonoma Moose Social Club, at Oak Grove. A big program of sports is in course of arrangement, consisting of dancing, games and races. Gate prizes are also to be given. The day will assuredly be one of events.

Avon Gershenson, who has taken a cottage at Parente's Villa, for the summer, was the victim of a severe accident, Sunday last. While leading a fractious horse, the animal became unmanageable and kicked Mr. Gershenson, inflicting a bad laceration over the right eye. The injury was dressed by Dr. Gobar.

Miss Elvera Batchelor, daughter of Mrs. S. Batchelor of this city, was graduated from Notre Dame Convent, San Jose, Tuesday evening of last week. This charming and accomplished young lady has taken her departure from California for an extended trip through the northern States, and on her return will enjoy an extended visit in Sonoma with her mother.

The Misses Florence Green and Dorothy Lycette spent several days of last week visiting in Glen Ellen, guests of Mrs. Olga Gordenker. Miss Lycette returns to her home in the metropolis next week, after spending several weeks at the Green home. She will be accompanied by Miss Florence, who plans to enjoy the month of July sojourning in the bay cities.

James B. Oates, the well-known Santa Rosa attorney, has formed a copartnership with Hilliard Comstock, who has read law in the office of Mr. Oates for over four years. He is a capable young man—safe, well posted and, like his colleague, an able lawyer. The firm of Oates & Hillard unquestionably will continue to maintain the prestige and give to their clients the faithful service and keen knowledge which placed James W. Oates at the head of Sonoma County's bar.

Eugene Oppliger returned Monday evening from a trip to San Francisco, Bakersfield, Fresno and Mohave. On Wednesday the gentleman left for Petaluma, to take charge of the jewelry business of a friend, during the latter's vacation trip. Mr. Oppliger has not yet decided on a permanent location, but it is earnestly hoped by scores of friends that he will locate in the city with which he has for so long been identified.

Our local physicians operated on quite a number of patients during the past week. Thursday of last week, Dr. Jackson Temple, who as a specialist has been eminently successful in the treatment of children's disorders, came over from Santa Rosa, and removed the tonsils from the little Masters Cecil Hunter, Allen McGimsey and John Stanley. Dr. A. M. Thomson assisted in the operation. During the week, Dr. Irving C. Gobar removed the tonsils from Miss Ethel Shane, and Preno Lorini, son of J. Lorini.

The Index-Tribune was favored with a call, Tuesday afternoon, from Blair Hart and son, L. B. Hart, who had just arrived from Biggs, Butte County, where Mr. Hart, Jr., is secretary and manager of the Biggs Rice and Land Company. The gentlemen had a growing sample of the rice from the company's tract on the Feather river, displaying the success of rice culture in that section of the State. Some eight years ago an experimental station was established at Biggs, with such satisfactory results that a tract of land was purchased by the government, and the growing of the cereal plant entered upon as a promising source of revenue. To such proportions has it grown that now over fifteen thousand acres are devoted, with signal success to its culture. Rice growing has also been taken up successfully in Chico. The gentlemen were en route to Lakeville, the home of the former popular supervisor from this district.

WHAT OUR NEAR-BY NEIGHBORS ARE DOING.

Week's Budget of News Notes From Progressiv Sonoma Valley Towns.

VINEBURG

Henry Forni transacted business in the bay city on last Tuesday.

Angelo Beretta, one of Sonoma's solid business men, was in the city of progress, one day this week.

Frank Sprague, one of the well-known Sonoma city attorneys, was exchanging greetings with his many Vineburg friends, Monday last.

Mrs. Fred Batto and sister, Miss Adele Andrieux, entertained a number of their friends at the Fred Batto residence on Sunday last and enjoyed a pleasant day.

During the second quarter of 1914, from April 1st to June 30th, Forty-three cars of grain, feed and general merchandise were unloaded on Batto's spur.

The stork hovered o'er the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Schiempp on Tuesday eve last and now a baby boy brightens their pretty home on the Hyde tract.

James L. Modini, "Starlight Jim," the genial and energetic manager of the Sonoma baseball team, was a Sunday guest of A W. Lehrke at the New Vineburg Inn.

Captain and Mrs. Olsen and family of San Francisco and Mrs. Rose Speigel and children of the same city, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. Colli, several days last week.

It certainly looked like Vineburg was progressing, from the large number of visitors that alighted from the trains on Sunday last. All seemed very much pleased with the different improvements now in progress and many will attend the celebration on July 4th and 5th.

Louis Rouque late manager of the Vineyard Villa, has returned to his former business of painter and decorator and is now prepared to do any kind of work in his line of business. Louie's work in this vicinity speaks for itself.

Frank Kennedy, one of the oldest and most popular of Vineburg's summer visitors, arrived on last Tuesday, and is a guest at the New Vineburg Inn. This makes Mr. Kennedy's fifteenth annual visit to this part of the valley, where he is well-known and highly respected.

It is reported in sporting circles that Henry Pape, the popular mixologist of Vineburg and James L. Modini, the baseball magnate of Sonoma, are entered for the fat man's foot race on the new track here, July 4th. No, we didn't hear of what kind of motorcycle they were going to use.

Messrs. Fred and Arthur Batto returned home on Tuesday evening after a business and pleasure trip of a week. During their absence they visited the principal points in Merced, Fresno, Tulare and Kings Counties and also took in the Yosemite Valley. They report a fine time.

Minnie Madden says she knows a young society man that only takes a bath once in three years, and then he goes to Boyes', Fetters' and Richards' warm springs and takes a bath in each place the same day. He is a very busy man and he dosn't believe in bathing on the installment plan.

On Sunday afternoon, while returning home, August Rouque, accompanied by his son, Master Pierre, met with quite an accident while driving out of the Curry place, the wheels of the wagon breaking through a culbert, throwing father and son out. The boy's head striking the railroad track, causing a painful wound. Medical aid was summoned and we are glad to state that little Pete is getting along nicely

EASY JIM.

SCHELLVILLE

Mrs. Wm. Clements, of Edendale, had adecidedly pleasant visit from Mrs. M. Marti, of Petaluma, Monday.

E. E. Bennett, our poultryman, left for a business trip to San Francisco, Wednesday.

We are soon to lose our good neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Arbogast, who having disposed of their lovely country home here will take up their residence in the Bay City. This estimable couple have a wide circle of friends throughout the valley, all of whom deeply regret their removal. All sorts of good luck is wished them in their new home

There's a certain popular resident of Schellville, named Tony, who is said to be on the warpath, and threatens to ruthlessly destroy a certain sewing machine. Tony didn't find out until well on his way to work, the other morning, that one leg of his trousers was exactly six inches shorter than its mate. He doesn't blame his wife—not in the least. The fault is attributed entirely to the machine.

At her comfortable home, on Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Jas. Tate was hostess to the Dutch Club. The hospitality of the Tate home is unbounded and delightful, and on this occasion the pleasure afforded her guests by Mrs. Tate was no exception to the rule. The afternoon passed quickly and happily, and the company showered many compliments on the culinary skill of the hostess. "Ant so it goes alretty yet"

Mrs. Anton Keiser and children expect to leave, Sunday, for a two weeks' vacation with Oakland relatives.

It is rumored that our burg is to have another fine hotel and summer resort in the near future—and the party did not find a buried treasure, either.

Mrs. A. Hopke returned home, after a delightful visit of a week, with friends in the bay cities.

Mr. Kretzer, of San Francisco, spent a few days at the Embarcadero Hotel. It seems that the apricots, which grow in the Jack Gilfoyle orchard, looked awfully good to Mr. Kretzer.

Hay baling is in full swing at the Jones ranch—two traction-engine hay-bailing outfits being in operation.

Harry Knight and little daughter of Martinez, were week-end guests at the home of Assessor Howard Knight.

Sam Haven, Schellville's hay broker, disposed of eight bales of his choice hay last week—not tons.

Recently, a cow belonging to Mr. Saylor was taken very sick with milk fever, but fortunately Dr. Geo. Millerick was on hand, and soon relieved the suffering animal.

HAPPY JACK.

Health-Seekers Pass Away

John Joseph Larkin who came to the Sonoma Valley from his home in San Francisco, hoping to benefit his failing health, died at The Oaks, last Saturday. The remains were shipped to the home of deceased for interrment. Mr. Larkin was unmarried and was aged twenty-three years.

Another health-seeker to pass away, last Saturday, was Charles James McErlane, who was also a resident of San Francisco. Deceased was sojourning at El Verano when summoned by death. His remains were taken to the Bay City for burial. The demise of Mr. McErlane is attended with very sad circumstances. Some two months ago he was married, and on that occasion he was stricken with hemorrhages, and from then on passed rapidly into the decline from which death released him. He was but twenty-eight years of age.

Both of these young men, whose careers have been cut short by the relentless Reaper in the very prime of life, when existence is at its best and happiest, and the future spreads before bright and promising, were very highly respected in their home city, and each had a wide circle of friends who deeply regret their untimely demise.

REMEDY FOR PRUNE SCALE

The scale commonly known as Brown Apricot scale and European Fruit scale, has given the fruit grower of this country much trouble for the past two seasons, and while the trees seem to be, on the whole, less infested this year than last, the conditions will warrent a concerted action against the pest. For many years, in the coast districts of California, it has been found unnecessary to resort to the use of sprays for the control of this scale, for the reason that a natural enemy in the form of a small Chaloid fly called Comys-fusca, has succeeded in keeping it in check. This parasite has been distributed yearly from the State Insectary to all growers who had infested orchards and who made application for colonies of the insect. The County Commissioner also distributed large numbers last year and arrangements were made for a distribution this year, but this course has been abandoned.

There are several reasons why it was thought best not to send out colonies of the parasite this year, and the principal one is there is no need of a further distribution in this county, owing to the fact that in every orchard examined where the scale was present the parasite was also found. Another reason is that a new condition has arisen which so hampers the work of the parasite that its value in ridding the orchards of the scale is very slight, and under these conditions we cannot hope for a control by means of the parasite. The condition referred to is called hyperparasitism, and means that the Comys fusca also has its enemies and these are preying on it to such an extent in this county as to render its efficiency almost nothing. The U. S. Department of Agriculture has identified five primary parasites and several that are messmates, and as such, nearly as harmful as if they preyed on the little fly directly. This simply means that five little flies of the same nature as the Comys fusca are preying on this little friend of the prune grower. Food supply controls the number of individual insects, so when we find a badly infested orchard, the little parasite will multiply freely and in great numbers, and the same rule will apply to its enemies as well, so that no real advantage seems to have been gained on the scale in the last four or five years.

The remedy for this condition is a spray which will completely clean our orchards of the scale, and we will thus be rid of friend and foe alike. We can then re-introduce the Comys fusca, being careful to exclude its enemies should this course again become necessary. However, if this campaign is to be at all effective, it must be carried on by all the growers and at the same time, and with this end in view we have been experimenting for the past two years so as be be able to advise the very best course to pursue. By far the best spray found for this purpose, and one which will also serve several other purposes as well, is the crude oil emulsion. Not only will it kill the aphis which are wintering there to infest the prunes and hops in the spring. One careful application every three years is all that is necessary. It is absolutely harmless to the tree and in fact, acts as a stimulant as the tree always puts out a fine growth the following year.

One thing is essential—the oil should be genuine crude oil just as it comes from the wells, and for this reason the home prepared emulsion is always preferable. It should be applied in the early winter, any time after the 15th of November. We give two methods of preparing the emulsion either of which is good.

No. 1. Liquid soap, 3 gallons, crude oil, 10 gallons, water, 88 gallons. Place water in tank, dilute the liquid soap and add to water with the agitator running, then add the oil slowly.

No. 2. Whale oil soap, 10 lbs., caustic soda, 2 lbs., crude oil, 10 gallons, water, 88 gallons. Dissolve the soap by boiling in water, a gallon to the pound of soap. Dilute and place in the tank, add the rest of the water and caustic soda dissolved, then add the oil slowly with the agitator running.

Talk on Home Rule in Taxation.

Tuesday evening of next week, at seven-thirty o'clock, at the corner of the postoffice, an open-air speech will be delivered by Charles James, under the auspices of the local Chamber of Commerce. Mr. James, said to be an excellent and convincing talker, will argue in favor of the Constitutional Amendmendment giving counties, cities and towns the right of Home Rule in Taxation. This Amendment, which is to be voted on at the general election in November, reads as follows: "Any county, city and county, city or town, may exempt from taxation for local purposes in whole or in part any one or more of the following classes of property: Improvements in, on or over land; shipping; household furniture; live stock; merchandise; machinery; tools; farming implements; vehicles; other personal property except franchises. Any ordinance or resolution of any county, city and county, city or town, exempting property from taxation, as in this section provided, shall be subject to a referendum vote as by law provided for ordinances or resolutions. Taxes levied upon property not exempt from taxation shall be uniform."

Highway Bulletin To Be Had.

The July Highway Bulletin, just issued by the California Highway Commission for free distribution, gives some interesting facts about progress on California's State highway. The work in each county is given in detail. It shows that surveys have been completed on 1,888 miles, and that 607 miles of this is either completed construction or under contract, the greater part being a paved road having a four-inch concrete base fifteen to twenty-four feet wide. In addition about 100 miles is pending award.

Plans are completed for considerable additional work, which will be advertised as soon as right of way and other details can be closed up. Bids are to be opened July 6 for 85.4 miles of construction, located in Shasta, Tehama, Yolo, Santa Cruz, San Benito, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Kern, Ventura and San Diego counties.

The Highway Bulletin will be sent without charge to any reader of the Sonoma Index-Tribune who will address a request to the California Highway Bulletin, Rialto Building, San Francisco, Cal.

An Eutopian Measure Which Should be Downed at the Polls

Another Socialistic initiative measure providing that the state shall become a manufacturer and employer will appear upon the ballot in November. The petition, which has been received by Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan, provides for the creation of a Board of Public Industry, supported by an appropriation of $5,000,000, part of which shall be used for the purchase of factories, land or anything necessary shall be used for the purchase of factories, land or anything necessary to give employment and to produce articles which shall be sold direct to the people.

The board will have the power to make contracts of all kinds and to engage in all kinds of business, from selling peanuts to publishing newspapers. Any citizen who takes an oath that he is unable to find employment must be given work, and if there is no work this board must provide him with the necessities of life. Wages will be above the stipulated minimum of $2.50 for those over eighteen and $1.50 for those under.

The Farmers' Protective League, in addition to opposing the Universal Eight Hour Law, will also work to defeat this Utopian measure, the most attractive feature of which is the proposal to furnish idlers with free board, free lodging and free clothing.

The League is being organized actively throughout the State and hundreds of citizens, workingmen as well as merchants, are rallying to its support in the campaign to defeat proposed legislation which, if adopted, would ruin the agricultural interests of California.

That universal eight hour legislation has not the endorsement of the American Federation of Labor is shown by the evidence of Samuel Gompers, its president, who, in testifying before the Federal Industrial Commission, declared his opposition to such legislative regulations.

Sure To Have Justice Dispensed.

There are three candidates for the office of Justice of the Peace in Sonoma Township to be voted for at the August primaries. These are James Campbell (incumbent), J. M. Cheney, who held the office for several terms years ago, and Lester Small, who has been reading law in Attorney Robt. A. Poppe's office for several years.

These candidates have lived here for years and are known to almost every voter in the township and need no encomiums at our hands. Suffice it to say the people of Sonoma Township are fortunate in having three candidates for the office of Justice of the Peace each of whom is in every way qualified for the position, and in every way worthy of the support of their friends. You can take it from us that it matters not which of the three aspirants should be elected to dispense justice in our midst, if you violate the law you will surely get what is coming to you.

A Bad Accident

What narrowly escaped resulting in a fatality occurred Wednesday afternoon, just opposite the Boyes' Springs station. Mrs. A. Marcus and Miss Mary Guthertz, who are guests at Baum Garden, El Verano, were driving with a gentleman friend, when their horse became frightened, and overturned the conveyance, throwing out the occupants. The ladies were brought in to Dr. Irving C. Gobar for medical attention. Mrs. Marcus, it was found, had sustained a severe scalp wound and other minor injuries, while Miss Guthertz suffered a bad scalp wound and painful contusions of the neck and right shoulder. The driver escaped unhurt. Both ladies are residents of San Francisco, and they are to be congratulated on escaping without more serious injury.

To Move Postoffice

Negotiations, which were entered into some months ago by Ex-postmaster Cheney, have been taken up by his successor, J. D. Wagnon, on behalf of the Government, with Mrs. Catherine Poppe for the construction of a building to be occupied by the postoffice, and to be equipped with complete and up-to-date furnishings. Quite a number of residents ardently favor the Government owning its own buildings, suggesting the plaza as a suitable site. This is not feasible, however, as no deed could be given to property. If some public-spirited citizen would donate a suitable lot, there is no doubt but that the Government would vote an appropriation and put up a building.

Doings at Agua Caliente Springs

An audience that tested the capacity of the bath house of Agua Caliente Springs witnessed the first of a series of swimming contests on Wednesday night. The success which attended the opening entertainment has led the proprietor, Theodor Richards, to arrange for keeping the bathhouse open every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings.

Valuable prizes were awarded in the various events of Wednesday evening, and many novelties in the way of water sports are being planned for the contests to be held at regular intervals during the season

The large tank in the bath house is thoroughly cleaned and refilled three times a week, thus insuring cleanliness and comfort for the patrons of the beautiful resort in Sonoma Valley.

Week-end parties are a feature at Agua Caliente Springs, and arrangements are complete for the handling of an expected record-breaking crowd which will celebrate the Fourth of July as guests at Agua Caliente

Dr. Gobar Buys Murphy Home

Dr. Irving C. Gobar has purchased the Ralph Murphy home, on Napa street, which he intends remodelling and converting into an up-to-date sanitorium, equipped with operating room and all other necessary appliances. This splendidly-located and spacious home is admirably adapted for the purpose for which it is to be used. Dr. Gobar expects to be located in his new quarters by August 1st.

SOCIETY EVENTS---CLUB NOTES---PERSONAL MENTION

(BETSY JANE'S OWN DEPARTMENT)

Well, here I am again!—on hand like a bad penny. Consigned, like the worthless coin to total oblivion for a fortnight—or, was it longer? A sufficient length of time, as a matter of fact, however, to warrant my return and relieving my surcharged mind of its burden of gossip.

To be sure, I haven't much to detail in a social way, but then, one doesn't expect Society to be active when the mercury climbs so very close to the three-figure mark. Moreover, these of mid-summer are the months when all the world and his wife are traveling—away to revel beside the sea, the rolling, tumbling, restless sea, whose foam-capped waves leap and flash and toss glittering spray with an abandon intoxicatingly delightful; or, to seek great Nature—the very heart of her, which throbs with softly purling waters, sweet leaf music and the trills of silver-throated songsters. With no discordant note to mar the perfect harmony, should not the soul expand as the physical being relaxes? Should not all whose good fortune it is to absorb the ennobling teachings of Mother Nature be broader and purer of thought, and return to mingle with humankind with kindlier impulses and a desire to put into life more of sweetness, of gentleness, of unselfishness?

Oh, but there? We haven't time to moralize, this morning. have we? Besides, it isn't necessary on this day of all days—when every human heart of us throbs with pride and patriotism as the banner of freedom is unfurled upon the soil of every state of these United States, to be reverenced by a liberty-loving and grateful nation.

Many of us, a host, in fact, will spend the day at Petaluma; many others are going to Napa, and a goodly number will enjoy lunch under the inviting shade of Oak Grove. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Koerner have arranged a basket picnic at their delightful resort, with a fine band to furnish music for dancing. One could ask for no more pleasurable manner in which to spend this Fourth. Its inducements are three-fold—a restful, rather than a fatiguing, wearisome day, traveling about 'neath a glaring sun; a delightful spot in which to enjoy the viands one likes best, and a resort the respectability of which is unquestioned and the hospitality most cordial.

Tonight we celebrate at home—just in a quiet way, of course, in Sonoma's public square, where all devotees of Terpsichore may revel in their favorite pastime, and those of us who are too sedate- not too old, no one is barred by age nowadays—to participate in the mazy whirl can enjoy the music discoursed by the Boys' Band. It will be a decidedly enjoyable ending of the time-honored holiday.

Isn't our own a city of which to be proud when bathed in the flood of electricity which is our privilege enjoy each Saturday evening of past fortnight? We hadn't ed what we were missing unwere afforded the appreacquisition of a city made ul, and now, with lights and t night, we hope for the ation that will make our re attractive in the unsube of day. The ladies of committee intend renewties, I understand, next During July the Sonoma oman's Club is enjoying on, after which refreshhe ladies will bend their ens to secure the erection of the ch-desired club house, and to improve the plaza.

The Women of Woodcraft of Glen Ellen have named Saturday night of next week, July 11th, as the date for their dancing party, for which arrangements are being made by Mesdames Roeshamban, Chas. Poppe and Anna Erickson, with L. A. Costa as chief assistant and adviser. The Circle has made real social successes of all affairs given under its auspices, with the result that the announcement of one causes a flutter of pleasurable anticipation. Sonoma's young people are so cordially treated and have such nice times that the Women of Woodcraft may expect to greet a host when the doors of Chauvet Hall are thrown open for the dance of next week.

The members and their friends of the Young Men's Institute are to enjoy one of their pleasant socials, too, during July. I haven't the date at hand, but the latter part. Dancing, of course, of which it may be said we never tire, be the weather ever so warm, will be the source of entertainment, with refreshments and the unfailing pleasure of social converse, which is all satisfying when youth is at its zenith.

By the bye, there is a possibility that a Young Ladies' Institute will be organized in Sonoma in the not distant future. Miss Josephine Molloy, grand secretary of the order, believes that Sonoma could support a flourishing branch of the fraternity, and a few active spirits have demonstrated willingness to cooperate with Miss Molloy in the work. The Young Ladies' Institute is an organization composed of Catholic women, and its objects are to promote the moral, mental and social advancement of its members, and to extend assistance in time of need.

Mrs. A. D. Lowell entertained the members of the Congregational Missionary Society, Tuesday evening, and the gathering was of unusual interest. The nine ladies present were treated to a surprise in the way of an interesting community letter, extending greetings, from Mrs. Price, who with Rev. T. M. Price, pastor of the Congregational Church, is enjoying a six weeks' visit with their son, B. J. Price, at Fort Dodge, Iowa, and write of a most pleasurable sojourn. Mrs. Price will be rewarded by receiving a reply from each lady. This was Home Mission Day, and some time was devoted by the ladies to the reading and discussion of "The New American," by Mary and Lemuel Barnes Clarke, who are prominently identified with the Missionary cause. Mrs. Hannah Appleton, secretary and treasurer, reported that the quarterly benevolency apportionment of sixteen dollars and twenty-five cents had been forwarded to the International College, at Springfield, Ill., which provides for the training of foreign-born young men wishing to become ministers and teachers. Refreshments were served and in every respect the meeting was a gratifying one. Mrs. O. J. McKinnon is the valued president of the Society.

The ladies of the Bridge-Whist Club enjoyed the popular diversion of card-playing at the home of Mrs. O. B. Shaw, Thursday, Miss Anna Pemberton extending gracious hospitality as hostess. A profusion of Shasta daisies and fragrant roses adorned the beautiful home, and the occasion was another added to the many pleasant memories of gatherings enjoyed by the club. Mrs. L. Lutgens was the fortunate winner of the afternoon's prize—a pretty Bohemian rose jar.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Murray were visitors in the metropolis Tuesday. Jack denies with asperity the assertion that he frittered away two valuable hours' time vainly seeking in the crowd in front of Hale's the elusive "Bonnie Burr." The weary, fruitless waiting of Ex-mayor Cummings, who actually thought he'd detected the evasive lady, Monday, only to find himself mistaken, dampened Jack's ardor—so he says.

Art Hickman, Boyes' well-liked amusement manager, is having the pleasure of entertaining his mother and sister, Mrs. and Miss Pearl Hickman, who will spend a few weeks at the favored resort. Miss Hickman, it will be remembered, was the dainty, fortunate owner of the tiniest foot at the Exposition Ball of All Nations, winning first prize for wearing the Cinderella slipper. The charming little lady is one of the cleverest and most graceful of San Francisco's exponents of dancing.

Tuesday was delightfully spent by the members of St. Barbara's Guild, and the young people of Trinity Episcopal Church, who enjoyed a picnic at Sobre Vista, the beautiful country home of Rudolph Spreckles. Games, bathing and a variety of sports made the day one to be pleasantly remembered.

The building of a memorial to the early mothers of California is progressing admirably, the sculptor, Charles Grafly, having finished the bas-relief panels, which show the Golden Gate and Oregon Trails. The sculptor is now at work on the full-sized group, the mother and two children, which will surmount the pedestal.

The subscriptions to the monument fund now considerably exceed six thousand dollars, with interest increasing. The school children of Los Angeles were among the latest contributors, sending in over five hundred dollars.

Schools of other sections of the State should emulate the example set by the boys and girls of Southern California in helping to rear a lasting testimonial to those heroic women who endured privations and sufferings with fortitude and patience beyond compare.

The inscription for the monument to the Pioneer Mothers was written by Benjamin Ide Wheeler, the president of the University of California. Here it is:

"Over rude paths beset with hunger and risk she pressed on toward the vision of a better country; to an assemblage of men busied with the perishable rewards of the day she brought the threefold leaven of enduring society: faith, gentleness and home with the nurture of children."

"Faith—gentleness and home, with the nurture of children," thus it has been with her since the halo of motherhood glorified woman. Pure, unselfish and enduring is the love borne by a mother for her child. No other love can be more tender yet powerful, more pure, more holy than that of motherhood. And her influence on character! As Thatcher truly says:

"To her is mainly committed the task of pouring into the mind of infancy its first impressions of duty, and of stamping on its susceptible heart the first image of its God. Who will not confess the influence of a mother in forming the heart of a child? What man is there who cannot trace the origin of many of the best maxims of his life to the lips of her who gave him birth? How wide, how lasting, how sacred is that part of a mother's influence. Who that thinks of it, who that ascribes any moral effect to education, who that believes that any good may be produced, or any evil prevented by it, can need any arguments to prove the importance of the character and capacity of her who gives its earliest bias to the infant mind?"

And what, if not the mother's love promotes this influence on the susceptible character of her child? Men of all ages and of all climes unite in paying their highest tributes to the mothers who gave them birth, who taught them the precepts of truth and honor, and who aided them in their efforts to surmount the obstacles encountered on life's highway. They who have attained distinction in this world, reverentially acknowledge that to their mother's teachings was due much of their success.

And those Spartan mothers of pioneer days! Those mothers and wives, tender of body but strong and courageous of heart, enduring cruel hardship to wage, with the fathers of their children, the battle of existence sympathizing with anxieties, sharing the troubles, and whose love like a brilliant beacon, beamed brightest in the hours of deepest gloom, are they not, in truth, worthy of the memorial to be reared in their honor?—an august honor to motherhood.

L. S. SIMMONS

Chas. Spindler Writes Interestingly From Argentina Republic

Of interest to the traveler through Argentina are first the enormous herds of cattle, mostly Hereford type, counting by thousands; millions of sheep, some heavy horses, but most of all the Argentina ostrich, which are also quite numerous. Often, though, one can see one old hen, tracking around with her brood of about fifteen young ones. The feathers of these birds make excellent dusters, but for plumage on ladies' hats—they are too common.

The population of Argentina is composed of about fifty per cent Italians, twenty per cent Spanish, eight per cent German, five per cent English and twelve per cent Indian. The Negros and the Japs can be counted singular, as there are very few.

The richest man in Argentina is an Italian, Antonio Devoto, claimed to be worth two million pesos.

Buenos Aires is the capital of Argentina with a population of about one and one-half millions, and is about the size of Philadelphia. The Theatre Colon, erected at a cost of ten million dollars, beats all our United States theatres. The city was founded in 1535, on the Rio Plata, and now covers an area of about seventy-two square miles, and is flat as a plate. The old part of the city has but narrow, though well-kept streets, with a trolley line in almost every one. These run on one side of the street to permit wagons and autos to pass.

The avenida del Mayo cuts through the center, running from the executive mansion to the Congressional Building, like the Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, D. C. It reminds one of the Boulevard d'Italienne, in Paris, with its cafes and the wide sidewalks, occupied with tables, on which coffee and other drinks are served to the thirsty and the time-killers alike.

The Calls, Florida, is also a beautiful thoroughfare, but outside of the center of the city, the avenues are all wide, planted with trees and the roadways asphalted.

I visited the Museum of Belle Arts--quite an interesting building, in which objects of art in painting and sculpture are exhibited. The Government offers prizes continuously for paintings, etc., to stimulate art. Of course a good many objects are copies, like the everywhere-seen Venus of Milo, but there are some good masterpieces of late date. I doubt, however, that our American societies would permit some of these nude objects to be exhibited, without being provided with fig leaves, or, preferably, a bathing suit. Furthermore, some paintings--beautiful and natural as they are--would find no hook or nail to hang on in any of our American art galleries, conducted by timid and over-zealous manageresses.

Congressional elections were held yesterday, on a Sunday, to save time, and all business had to rest, excepting cafes and restaurants, which were open between twelve and three p. m.

I spent the time in Palmero Park, admiring the rare specimens of trees, palms, shrubbery and flowers. I also want to state that I saw several birds and animals in the Zoological Garden entirely new to me, and while this garden lacks in size, comparing it with the Brant it New York, yet favored by climatic conditions, the specimens exhibited look more natural and the visitor does not regret his time and fee spent.

The Botanical Garden, alongside of the Zoological, is for the lover of nature and beautiful flowers simply an Eden.

The harbor facilities, i. e., the fine docks along the river are not surpassed by any in the whole world, but having proven inadequate, they will soon be enlarged. The high standard of living in Buenos Aires may be objected to by the visitor. Of course, we call it high cost of living and is mostly the result of import duties, which are quite high and the main source of income for governmental purposes. Everything is high-priced, but wages are twice as high as in Chile, and good laborers can be had here, whereas they were very scarce in the neighbor republic.

All told, Buenos Aires makes a good impression.

I made several trips out into the country, the farthest to Rosario, one way by river steamer, the other one by rail. An inland city of one hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants in an agricultural section of quite some importance and the lagest city in the State of Santa Fe, Rosario appears to be a wealthy city, with wide avenidas and beautiful plazas. The City La Plata, about forty miles south of Buenos Aires, is certainly worth visiting. Here is the University and the National Historical Museum, and a half day spent in La Plata will never be regretted.

The suburban town Ornilmes, twenty miles southwest, harbors the largest South American brewery, producing over half a million barrels of excellent beer, and is no doubt one of the best equipped breweries in the world.

Another large brewery I visited in Llavollal, where there is also an immensely large nursery, and the stock carried by this concern is worth millions of pesos. The underground railroad of Buenos Aires, built after the New York pattern, will be extended out this way. In fact, Buenos Aires has copies of all modern and large cities like Paris and New York.

I took the Mihonovitsh Line Boat to Montevideo, the capital of Uruguay, just a night's trip, and stayed four days in this thriving metropolis of about three hundred thousand inhabitants. The business part of the city is built on a peninsula and is surrounded by a strong seawall. This is a very cultured city, the Boston of South America. The legislative Palacio is one of the finest in the world. The Solis Theatre is quite large. The streets are clean and wider than generally found in Latin South American cities. The avenues with large and well trimmed trees principally the avenida Labala, and the avenida 18th of Julio, leave no room for any fault to be found.

The treasury system and the electric light plant, owned principally by German capitalists, are modern and give good service. Whereas, the Peruvian sol was worth forty-five cents, the Bolivian boliviano thirty-five cents, the Chilean pesos twenty cents, the Argentina pesos forty-six cents, the Uruguayan pesos is above our dollar, namely one dollar and twelve cents, which shows the wealth of this republic. Of course, the large estates are in the hands of the old settlers, who export beef and sheep alive, as well as dried meat, extracts of beef, hides, wool and grain in large quantity. The Prado, a large park in which there are yet, patches of original forests, occupied my time a half day.

The trip back to Buenos Aires, I made by Steamship Cabo Santa Maria of the Hamburg—South American Compania. During the two days of more sight-seeing in Buenos Aires, the ship Cape Trafalger, the biggest steamship ever entering the Buenos Aires port, owned by the Hamburg--South American line, with Prince Henry of Prussia on board, arrived and feelings vaulted high in the whole city. The three-funneled new ship almost set the population wild, and the enthusiasm seemed to be genuine. The fact that the German Government is subsidizing the forty German schools in Argentine may be a reason.

Buenos Aires has one German and two English daily papers, though it is to be regretted that all the United States news, arriving by an English cable, is strongly Britonized; for instance, the fact that the big, new German steamship Imperator, on a late trip from New York to South Hampton, broke the record of previous fast sailing, was printed in very small type in the English Herald and Standard, so that English sailors I met had all overlooked it. On the morning of leaving Buenos Aires by Steamship Tennyson of the Lamport and Holt line, the papers brought the news that the Socialist party had won seven out of the ten seats in Congress for Buenos Aires, and the comment made on the subject was that the public considered this party as the one with business-like principles.

On the way to Rio de Janeiro, we stopped a day in Montevideo to take on twelve thousand salted and five thousand dry cowhides. This gave me, and a number of passengers a chance to go ashore, and we visited the big slaughterhouse, owned by Swift & Co., in which from seven to eight hundred steers are killed daily.

As chance would have it, I met several old acquaintances, who made the trip in the same direction from New Orleans, who had traversed Peru and Bolivia in a different direction. They were also headed for Rio, and I may say the four days on board the Tennyson to Santos passed quickly. They had made the trip from La Pass Bolivia to Buenos Aires direct and had encountered endless hardship and inconveniences, entering Argentine from the North via Tucuman and praised that farming section of the Republic very highly. But to go into business there, requires not less than twenty thousand dollars for land stock, in spite of the land being cheap.

Its wonderful what Pratt's Bag Ointment will do for your cows. John Batto & Sons, phone Sub. 11.
